

Significant where expected, null where expected

The two legs on one signed-correlation axis

Convergent clears zero with its inherited 95% CI; discriminant sits inside the null zone, indistinguishable from zero.

The inferential asymmetry — one CI excludes zero, the other leg is n.s. — is the Campbell-Fiske signature.

Source: AIAS™ v0.29 | Protocol v1.6 | Third System™